THE ELECTIONS.

ALTHOUGH there is still no certain news of the house of commons elections, there is every probability that they will be brought on early in January. In any case they must be before next July. The importance of these elections to the people of the North-West can scarcely be over-estimated. For the first time they will have a voice in the most important of the matters of government concerning them, and on the use they make of their newly acquired power will depend to a very great extent at least the near future of the country. No matter how strong an administration may be, if the four members from the North-West—especially if allied with the five from Manitoba—are united in wishing the welfare of their constituents and on the means of securing it, their demands cannot and will not be unheeded. In a house nearly equally divided as the next one is likely to be there is every reason to believe that every reasonable demand tending to the welfare and development of the country would be granted. Upon the development of the North-West depends the prosperity of Canada, and if the representatives of the North-West can agree as to what policy will tend to that development and have the ability to present their case clearly and forcibly the representatives of the rest of Canada will, aside from party for the benefit of their own parts of the country, be ready to grant it to them. Then we may expect the opening of the natural resources of the country—land and minerals, timber and pasture—for the use and benefit of the people of the country not to fatten favorites at the public expense or to make the North-West sustain the burdens of confederation. Then we may expect the business of peddling railway charters to cease, North-West railways to be aided by cash as in the east instead of land, competing outlets by way of Hudson's Bay and the United States, and railways generally made the servants not the masters of the people. Then, and not till then, we may expect the local government of the North-West to be placed on a permanent footing, with its powers defined and revenues assured sufficient to meet the great present and constantly increasing requirements of the country. But if men are elected on the model of those who have rendered representation a farce in Manitoba since that province was created—men like Scott and Royal who themselves and for their constituents are content to play the part of Lazarus and the dogs at the rich man's table, or like Ross and Sutherland ready for a consideration to sting the hand that warmed them into political life—can only expect to receive similar consideration at the hands of the federal administration, whether it be called conservative or reform, as the people of Manitoba—that is none whatever. Such representation is worse than none. Through its representatives Manitoba became a consenting party to its own injury and disgrace, an experience that the North-West has yet been spared. If the people of the Territories wish to avoid such disgrace in the future now is the time for them to act. Let them choose men who, no matter what their political preferences, may be depended upon to set country before party or private interest. Upon the administration of the affairs of the North-West for the next few years depends to a large extent the material welfare of every person in it; upon the representatives soon to be elected that administration depends. It is then to the immediate personal interest of every voter to exert himself to the extent of his ability to secure the election of such candidates as can be depended upon to vote in the interests of those whose votes elect them.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Free Press asserts that the alleged H. B. railroad of Hugh Sutherland is being built by the C. P. R. to be under C. P. R. control. This of course would make the road no use as a competing line, and an explanation is demanded.

JAS. McMILLAN & Co. of Minneapolis quote furs on November 1st as follows: Bear, black, $1; grizzly, 14; brown, $10; fisher, dark, $9, pale, $6; fox, silver gray, $50, cross, $5, red, $1 50, kitto, 30c; martin, dark, $3, pale, $1 50; mink, dark, $1; otter, dark, $12, pale, $8; skunk, black, $1 50, striped 75c; wolverine, dark, $5, pale $3; wolf, timber, $3 50, prairie $1 25; beaver per skin $8 50; lynx $5; muskrat 6c to 9c. These quotations are only for prime skins of the best quality. Inferior skins are quoted much lower. Unprime skins except beaver are not wanted. The general outlook for furs is that they will rule as high or higher than last year. NORTH-WEST COUNCIL.

TUESDAY, Nov. 2.

Hughes-Irvine moved a committee of MacLeod, Reed, Ross and the mover and second to ask the federal government for pensions to the Prince Albert volunteers wounded and the relatives of those killed in the Duck lake fight. The total number of Prince Albert volunteers and scouts was 385. At Duck lake there were 43 engaged, of whom nine were killed and six wounded.

Turris introduced an ordinance to incorporate agricultural societies, giving them power to hold and dispose of land.

Council in committee on the administration of justice ordinance, Richardson in the chair.

The redistribution committee propose that Assiniboia shall have 15 members, Alberta 6 and Saskatchewan 4.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 3.

Hughes presented a petition from Prince Albert asking that doubts as to the legality of the incorporation of the town be removed. Reed introduced an ordinance amending the present ordinance respecting the running at large of bulls.

The lieutenant-governor laid on the table the report of the delegates to Ottawa; also a communication from the secretary of state on the same subject; also correspondence from Prince Albert re the high school.

Marshall moved that liquor fines go to the territorial revenue. Referred to a committee of the mover with Perley, Ross and Richardson, who reported that if the fines went to local funds the people would take more interest in seeing the liquor laws enforced. Recommendation adopted and forwarded to Ottawa.

Second-Ross moved a committee of Perley, Hughes, Wilson, Cayley and themselves to draft a memorial to the federal government.

Cayley-Ross moved a committee of Perley, Second, Hughes and themselves to consider the substitution of ballot for open voting in elections to the North-West Council.

Boyle-Irvine moved the committee re pensions to Prince Albert volunteers consider the claims of the police who served in the rebellion to the same rewards and distinctions as the militia. The mover was of opinion that the police deserved these rewards better than some who got them. He belonged to a company that did not see a shot fired during the whole trouble, yet they got medals and scrip.

It was pointed out that those actively engaged had been promised scrip and medals. Irvine spoke strongly. The Quebec school of cavalry which was camped at Touchwood Hills during the rebellion all got medals. The police should be dealt with as fairly as any corps in Canada.

Turris thought no demand should be made for medals. It would have been better if nobody got them, but the police were entitled to scrip if the Quebec cavalry were.

Ross strongly supported the motion.

Council in committee on Second's bill amending the game law decided to make the close season for feathered game end on Sept. 1st.

THURSDAY, Nov. 4.

The bill to incorporate agricultural societies was reported from the civil justice committee. Also resolution re Prince Albert volunteers from special committee.

Council in committee on the church property bill. Progress reported.

The bill to facilitate the transfer of real estate by married women passed in committee of the whole.

FRIDAY, Nov. 5.

A petition was received from Geo. Fisher of Kilmara asking for $60 for road improvement. Committed to the care of the lieutenant-governor.

Petitions were received from Sintaluta, Grenfell re municipal boundaries.

Marshall asked that his motion to admit beer into the Territories be allowed to stand.

Turris Redford moved the thanks of the council to the Ottawa delegates, Messrs. Perley, Ross and Wilson, the Ottawa delegates. Their report showed that 14 of the concessions asked for had been wholly granted, 6 partially conceded, 2 taken into consideration and 5 refused. He thought the government had found our delegates to be good, sound, sensible men, and if we continue to send such men down there the government will be convinced that we are able to govern ourselves.

Marshall said that although everything the delegates asked for was not granted, everything they were promised has not been acceded to—which is a matter that can be dealt with again—we feel that anything that has miscarried in this way has not been the result of the want of effort, a laxity of duty or a want of ability on the part of the delegates.

Perley replied. The delegates had been cordially received by the ministers. Their report did not coincide with that of the secretary of state, but this was explained by the fact that the delegates based their report on what the ministers had individually promised to try to obtain for them, and the secretary of state reported what action had been taken by the cabinet. Some of the ministers had not been able to carry out all they anticipated. The request to allow pre-emption to be taken as second homesteads was refused as these lands were the basis of federal credit in the English money market; they had in fact borrowed money on them. The minister of interior was anxious to benefit the settlers all he could.

Ross expressed thanks for the confidence reposed in him. He had not felt great responsibility. They had a good clear case and all they were required to do was to lay it before the proper ministers. He was disappointed at the refusal to allow the second homesteading of pre-emption. They had secured an extension of the time for payment for pre-emption; but this was not a sufficient concession and he did not count it a point gained. On the whole the wishes of the council had been met fairly well.

Wilson said he was a modest and bashful young man, and the remarks which had just been made put him quite out of place. He found himself in the same position as he was in at Ottawa, that is coming in at the end. Everything was said and so well said by his colleagues that there was nothing left for him but to fall in line and accept the honors. Reed moved that the committee re Prince Albert volunteers draft a memorial the federal government.

The game ordinance was amended to make the close season for all feathered game extend from March 1st to August 31st.

Hughes objected to such a long close season as interfering with the food supply of the country, and moved that the ordinance do not apply to Saskatchewan. Seconded formally by Cayley and lost.

The ordinance re the holding of land in trust for religious bodies passed a second reading.

MONDAY, Nov. 8.

Boyle reported from committee on police medals and scrip a resolution that their bestowal would be hailed throughout the North-West with satisfaction as an act of justice.

Rouleau from municipal committee reported against petitions from Grenfell and Wolseley re change of municipal boundaries.

Richardson from civil justice committee recommended the bill respecting calling of juries be distributed among the members before being passed.

Marshall from school committee reported a bill to amend the school ordinance of 1885.

Marshall-Hughes moved amendment to the herd law, making the close season for cattle in herd districts from June 1st to Oct.

Ross and Bedford objected.

Referred to miscellaneous committee. Hughes Cunningham moved a return showing the number and names of the electoral districts and qualified voters in the North-West to be laid on the table.

Reed's ordinance respecting bulls passed a second reading.

Bills to provide for the incorporation of agricultural societies and also of joint stock companies were considered in committee and progress reported.
